MIT Black Women's Alliance

2025-2026

WHAT IS BWA?

Established in 1997, the MIT Black Women's Alliance (BWA) aims to:

- ◆ Provide a forum to address the needs and concerns of Black women and non-binary undergraduate students at MIT
- ◆ Promote activism, unity, friendship, and community
- ◆ Encourage interaction with other campus groups
- ◆ Support the scholarship of Black women and non-binary students at MIT
- ◆ Increase awareness of Black women and non-binary students' issues in the MIT community through activities designed to increase visibility on campus

OUR GOALS

♦ Develop Black women and non-binary students into leaders:

- Provide professional development opportunities from experts to facilitate the development of Black women and non-binary students in their respective fields
- Work with other Black women's organizations in nearby universities to assist our members in creating a network

♦ Push for a stronger Black and femme presence in STEM professions:

- Create a database of Black women and non-binary faculty on campus and alumni in STEM residing in the Boston area and connect them with students
- Partner with companies who make diversity in their workplace a priority

♦ Address issues of discrimination on and off campus:

- Increase ally-ship on campus by holding more community events focused on Black non-men's issues
- Hold learning circles to facilitate discussions on topics that affect Black women and non-binary students
- Hold events that encourage bonding within our community

WHY SPONSOR US?

Sponsorship is the most direct way you can support the BWA mission throughout the year. As we prepare Black women to advocate for themselves in spaces here and beyond, your generous contribution would allow us to continue the programs that foster their personal and professional growth.

We appreciate all of our honorable sponsors as they are integral to our club's success!
